The new 3.13.11-rc4-based Linux kernel brings with it a number of improvements and fixes. Among the many improvements, the most important are the ability to suspend and resume in the new efi_legacy_resume function, and the ability to better handle KMS drivers on machines with EFI firmware revisions older than 1.10. See the release notes and the full changelog for a complete list.1. Field of the Invention This invention relates to the field of semiconductor processing and more particularly to a method and apparatus to create multiple partially finished integrated circuits on a substrate. 2. Description of the Related Art The fabrication of semiconductor devices involves the formation of layers (often called films) on a surface of a substrate. These layers can be formed using a variety of deposition techniques such as chemical vapor deposition (CVD), physical vapor deposition (PVD), epitaxy, etc. Deposition processes form a thin film layer on a surface of a semiconductor wafer, thereby forming a substrate having an elevated region above the substrate surface. A wafer is formed having an elevated region above a surface of the wafer. The wafer is supported on an edge at a distance above the surface of the wafer. The side of the wafer opposite the side on which the elevated region is formed is supported. The wafer is supported in a vacuum chamber (or another chamber where a gas is present) to minimize the loss of gases from the chamber. The wafer may be supported on an edge. For example, the wafer may be supported by a chuck at an edge. The chuck includes a recess to receive the wafer. The edge of the wafer is supported on a top of the chuck. The edge of the wafer is supported at a
