After giving it a few days to settle in I was actually really impressed with it.Q: Confusion in proof of Lagrange's theorem I'm studying from this book now. There is a theorem concerning the intersection of an algebraic curve and a line. But there is a strange proof in the book. Here is my paper: Is this proof complete? The proof seems very hard to me. Is there a short proof of this theorem? A: Lagrange's Theorem only concerns the intersection of an algebraic curve SCS and the line SLS. From the book, it is known that SCS intersects SLS twice at points S_{p_1} , p_{25} with S_{p_1S} being the topmost point, as you draw. Thus the equation of the line SLS is $SS L : ax + by + c = 0$ where SaS , SbS , and ScS are the slopes of the line SLS, 570a42141b
