Advising to use a current flash from the wild game of Whittington.Q: How to rotate an image in X and Y and Z I have the following image, what I want to do is to rotate the image, the image can rotate in every direction where as a function in script. For example the image can rotate in X axis from 0 to 90 degrees. How can I rotate the image in four directions I know it is possible in matlab but how would I do it in Python. Here is my code below. import Image img=Image.open('img.jpg') img.rotate(90,0,1) img.show() A: >>> from PIL import Image >>> img = Image.open('your_image.png') >>> img = img.transpose(Image.FLIP_TOP_BOTTOM, Image.ROTATE_180) >>> img.rotate(90, 0, 1) >>> img.show() or >>> from PIL import Image >>> image = Image.open('image.png') >>> rotation_dir = ['n','s','e','w'] >>> image = image.rotate(90, rotation_dir) >>> image.show()

1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to high-pressure power supplies and, more particularly, to a high-pressure power supply connected to an arc discharge lamp.

2. Description of the Related Art Cold cathode fluorescent lamps (CCFLs) are widely used in some applications, such as backlights for liquid crystal displays (LCDs), headlights of vehicles, and headlight-illumination systems for vehicles and buildings, because CCFLs have the advantages of compactness and high-intensity, and thus a small amount of light is consumed. However, CCFLs cannot operate stably at a low current density and cannot maintain a stable light emission at a low current density. Therefore, CCFLs are used in combination with a high-pressure power supply and an electronic switch. The high-pressure power supply is connected with an arc discharge lamp. A high voltage is generated and then applied to the arc discharge lamp, and the arc discharge lamp is thereby driven. The electronic switch is used to control the supply of a high voltage generated by
