To open a program file, go to the start menu, choose the program you want to open, and click Open. The first thing to do with a new file is create an action. If you prefer to have all of your work available at once, and don't want to have to go back to open it, you can make an action in the Action Bar, as shown in Figure 8-4. Then you can just double-click the action icon to run it. Figure 8-4: Create an action for your Photoshop projects. Photoshop has an extensive built-in library of actions. Because you can modify files, and create new ones, you can take advantage of actions that can save you time, so that you can work on other projects simultaneously. Adobe supports the Action dialog box, which is a feature that enables you to save all your actions to one place. By default, actions are saved in the `.action` format. You can save them in any format, and they load when you open Photoshop. In addition to saving actions in the Action dialog box, you can use the `.psd` format. For example, one of your actions could run two other files in the same folder in a looping process. This is a feature you might want to take advantage of to save time. Photoshop has built-in libraries of actions so that you can load actions created by other artists. Each action has its own library, so you won't have to be concerned with deleting actions or overwriting the ones you want to use. All of the actions that come with Photoshop are in the Default action library. One of Photoshop's most powerful features is the Layer composition editing system. With layers, you can arrange, combine, and disarrange colors, shapes, and text to create complex images. A layer is a bitmap object that is positioned on top of the other layers. Although layers are displayed on top of the other layers, Photoshop has the capability of shifting layers up and down in the stack, enabling you to see the contents beneath your layer at any time. To add a new layer, you do so by clicking the New Layer button in the Layers panel (the Layer drop-down menu, as shown in Figure 8-5, opens with a dialog box that enables you to choose the name of your new layer. You can also use the Name tool to create a new layer and

Selective inhibition of phospholipase C activity by the phorbol ester 12-O-tetradecanoylphorbol 13-acetate. We have used a radiochemical and an immunological approach to study the effects of 12-O-tetradecanoylphorbol 13-acetate (TPA) on phospholipase C activity. The activation of phospholipase C in MDCK cells by the chemotactic peptide fMetLeuPhe involves the stimulation of protein kinase C. TPA inhibits the fMetLeuPhe-stimulated phosphoinositide breakdown in MDCK cells but does not affect the breakdown of phosphatidylinositol 4,5-bisphosphate that occurs in response to A23187. This differential effect is due to TPA's ability to inhibit phospholipase C activity selectively at the level of the catalytic subunit of the enzyme. In vitro kinase assays show that the catalytic subunit of phospholipase C is activated by calcium/calmodulin-dependent kinases. TPA was found to inhibit the kinase activity of the catalytic subunit of phospholipase C, as well as that of the calcium-independent enzyme phosphorylase kinase. We suggest that the inhibitory action of TPA on phospholipase C may be mediated by selective protein kinase C activation.

material that will tell people how to become gods. Smarty Pants likely doesn't care about evidence or proof. But Big Old Dad can. Considering how badly his Big Switch has turned out, I suspect Big Old Dad may have thought that it would be simpler to just do what his Big Older Brother could do. Or perhaps the Big Old Dad has simply watched his Big Old Brother for years doing what he can in his own (much smaller) way. And in fact, Big Older Brother has been to the Media Magic School of Understanding People. He's been doing Big Hopes and Big Dreams his whole life. For instance, he imagines that being a Mean Uncle means Big Older Brother is basically a nice person. And he imagines that being Nice Uncle means Big Older Brother loves everyone. But he really just means that Big Older Brother can do things with Big Old Dad's Soft-Warmings that Big Old Dad can't

Your booking and travel documents are packed. Everything is ready to go. You're dressed for the occasion and the weather looks great. Until you see the airline ticket. But what do you do if you are unable to reach the airline in time? Do you panic? Or do you sit back and wait for the airline to contact you? The time that you spend before travel trying to cancel an airline ticket or making a travel insurance claim may be the most frustrating part of an already stressful travel experience. And, it may not have to be. Here are four simple strategies for making airline travel less of an ordeal. Gather Your Documentation: Never Leave Home Without It. The receipt for the flight, together with your booking and travel documents, must be kept handy at all times. Your airline flight or travel insurance agent can generally be reached via phone, email, or fax. But, that doesn't mean you can't find yourself in an emergency when you're out of the office and can't access any of these electronic channels. Don't forget to keep a copy of the passenger receipt with your booking and travel documents. If you're flying domestically or to Canada, a sample document can be obtained from the respective Canada Customs office (see the links in the next section). It's also a good idea to keep a copy of your itinerary and a confirmation of your booking and travel documents on your mobile phone. It should be noted that you must access your itinerary on the day you're leaving for the airline. Failure to do so may result in a delay or refusal of the booking. If all else fails, write down the details of your booking and travel documents as you'll be unable to refer back to them later.

Maintain Your Correspondence With the Airline: If you're flying domestically or to Canada, your sample passenger receipt can be obtained from Canada Customs. In addition to your airline booking and travel documents, you should also keep a copy of your passenger receipt on file at the airline's headquarters. Most airlines have an online form on their website where you can keep an electronic copy of the documents. Most major airlines will also let you fax your documents to their headquarters. If you're unable to reach the airline's hotline, try faxing them or emailing them through their email address. Don't Let the Pressure Get to You:
