Its main purpose is to convert file checksums written in the spc-5 or spc-6 format into the spc format used by chkpt for integrity checking. For this purpose, it accepts a filename for extracting each file and then extracts file checksums which are then printed by echoing them on stderr. .PP A file checksum is always preceded by two percent digits and contains four bytes. The first two bytes are the string "0x" where x is the hexadecimal representation of the 4-byte integer. The string "0x" is used to distinguish a file checksum from a CRC or any other checksum. .PP The file checksum is preceded by either: \fImodp\fR for an MD5 checksum, \fImixup\fR for an MD5 and SHA1 checksum, or \fIshup\fR for an MD5, SHA1 and SHA256 checksum. The second two bytes contain the integer form of the file checksum (imodp, imixup, ishup). For example, the MD5 checksum for the
