Diversity and quantity of free bacteria, endotoxins and volatile sulphur compounds in Italian beer. The study evaluated the relationship between the occurrence of bacteria, endotoxins and volatile sulphur compounds (VSC) in Italian beer. Three different types of beer were analysed: normal (4.5% alcohol), light beer (3% alcohol) and drinkable beer (4% alcohol). Bacteria were isolated by enrichment and plated in appropriate culture media. A standard test was used for enterobacteria in enriched medium. For the determination of VSC the Kettering method was used and results were expressed as mg/l of SSM. All beers contained low levels of bacteria, ranging from 10(2) to 10(5) cfu/ml, the highest level being found in drinkable beer (10(4) cfu/ml). All beers were free from enterobacteria. Endotoxins were found only in drinkable beer (means of 0.58 EU/ml). VSC were present in normal and light beer and ranged from 50 to 300 mg/l. The levels of VSC in drinkable beer were different than in normal and light beers, but comparable to previous studies on beer. In conclusion, the study showed the presence of bacteria, endotoxins and VSC in beer. To our knowledge, this study is the first to be carried out on Italian beer samples.x51, 0xaa, 0x2e, 0xae, 0x23, 0x2d, 0x72, 0x33, 0x4e, 0x2f, 0x2e, 0x4f, 0x7f, 0x6c, 0x3b, 0x4b, 0x3e, 0x2d, 0xae, 0x2d, 0x

can you clarify your question? A: My guess is that Excel isn't entirely powerful and has some limitations, and if you want to create or modify complex formulas you may need to use a more powerful application. Try using LibreOffice Calc. Or if you're up for a switch, consider switching to Access as that does have more powerful formulas.
