Published:16:27Wednesday 23 November 2017 Share this article National school sports day in Elgin was the setting for a story of unlikely bravery. Elginshi Smacheks was a pupil at Elgin High School, who was competing in shot. The 15-year-old schoolgirl said: "The day was good fun, with lots of friendly rivalry going on in the field. "I was shooting co-ed with another girl, but I wasn't really concentrating, as I was thinking about a bit of distraction called 'fast-food'. It was a hot weather day and we both got a bit hot. I was keeping looking to the mirror to catch the breeze. "I had my back turned to the girls and my eyes were looking towards the ground. All of a sudden my friend screamed and I turned back to her to see that she was pointing her gun at me. It was loaded. "I thought it might go off, but the barrel was really hot and hot barrel fires are really hard to get off. I made sure there was no way I could be hit, but it might have gone off - I won't know until it's processed. "Although it's a great achievement, I'm still really scared for my son." When Elginshi's mother found out, she told her to just 'chill out'. Called 'the tiger mum' syndrome. Elginshi said: "My mum always taught me what to do and not to do.

"I'm really embarrassed about what I did, but I would have done it all over again to save my son. Occ13bf012
