What's new in Paintball Chibis:

Back to the way-back-when Does anybody remember paintball chibis? The medieval era, when chibis were actually used? Not really. And thus, this internet forum will have at least one member bring them to the forefront again. People from the medieval era have set rules that should be followed as to chibis. Here we go... 3.1.1 Chibis shall be named using one of the names of the city they are from in the following order: City (first) Name of the chibis (second) Cyphers of the city. So, if you want to name a chibis "Warwick Whitehall", you would look up the names of the city and write down "London", "Whitehall", and "Quatuor Parisiensis". 3.1.2 Chibis may only be used to represent living individuals. Not dead individuals or fictional individuals. And, chibis may only be used in chibis that have been by the user and are owned by the user. If a chibis is being used and gets eaten, the user may only use another chibis on a living person for the same event. And, the same goes if a chibis participates in a battle with a live person and gets killed. Chibis with black tape shall be considered dead. 3.1.2.1 Chibis that find their way into the hands of the person hosting the event shall not be counted into their limit. 3.1.3 If a person is involved in an incident at the same time as a chibis, the chibis shall represent the person they are with. In this case, the owner shall be the person used to represent the chibis. If a part of a chibis is visible, the visible part shall represent the person they are with. In this case, the owner shall be the person used to represent the chibis. 3.1.4 All chibis shall be owned by the person using them. 3.2. Chibis may be stolen and used by another person. Chibis may not be used twice on the same day. 3.2.1 If the person using the chibis is the original owner, there
