Any computer can recognize

this clock as long as you have a webcam and installed a driver related to the webcam. The clock can also recognize the days of the week. The clock will display an eye and a pointer on the top-left side of the screen, you need to use the arrow keys on your keyboard to move the pointer. When you click the eye, it will display the current time, timezone and your current location (if you move the mouse pointer to the top-right corner of the screen, it will display your current timezone and location). When you click a number on the right side, it will open a web page to tell you the time in that number of location. When you click a number on the left side, it will open a web page to tell you your location in that number of time. When you move the pointer to the right side of the screen, it will scroll the web pages you opened at the current time. Please read the installation instructions at: A very nice clock that display the current day, and the current time in a 7 segments LED, which is very unique, and beautiful. =
