HyperMotion Technology Fans have been craving Fifa for years and once again, EA are delivering with a match that delivers a true sense of immersion. They've created new physics based on real-world gameplay, created a brand new player model, added surface physics and created data inputs that are never before seen in a football game. Right down to the player and ball physics, everything has been tweaked to provide players with an exact and authentic feel. Fans in the last few years have been clamouring for a great new Football game and this one is definitely worth playing. A lot of games that have made an appearance in the Sony events have been strong additions, but this one is better. There are a lot of new additions, with a lot of ideas from the community in mind. There are several modes, all of which are over-the-top. As EA say in the intro, it's the World's Most Addictive Football Game. It has some of the greatest players in the world, with a lot of exciting events and you can play a massive number of matches in both single and online play. The game has a single-player story mode, a career mode where you can play up to 64 years of your life, and then 3 Ultimate Team modes that all have some sort of addictive mechanism. The best way to describe the story in this is as a "fake front story". Drake Bell is in the first movie, telling the story of how he created EA's FIFA franchise. Even the announcer is repeating what Drake says as he goes along. Then there's the 'Million Dollar Game' which sees you play all-star teams from each country from the past. At the end you play a special game where you're travelling back to the past and you run over the penalty shootout that you were saved from in the real-life FA Cup final. In the real-life final, when both teams headed down the tunnel, the American fans stood up on their seats cheering and clapping for the guys heading off. EA have figured out an incredible way of telling a story, where it appears as if you're being forced to do something. Then, at the end, you realise you were doing it of your own free will and having a good time.

Features Key:

- More control over your players with over 700 tweaks to 25 player attributes.

The year is 1994. Hope springs anew in Brazil, the "Dream Team" is nearly a decade old, and football is finally growing up. You have been playing FIFA for years and have seen the platform evolve into a deeper, smarter, more intuitive experience that will continue to please you as you make your way towards your ultimate goal: victory on the world stage. As a player, your experiences in FIFA have only begun. As a coach, you will begin to take your first steps towards guiding your nation to the World Cup. As a gamer, it's the start of the next generation, one that will change the way you interact with your favorite sport forever. We're asking the question: What are you going to do now? FIFA Points: The New Goal of Digital Football The fact that you are playing FIFA means that you're not watching football. You're playing it. But how do you manage your time between the World Cup, the Champions League and the Champions Leagues, then? How do you decide between practice and training sessions, to manage time? That's where the FIFA Points feature comes in. Instead of earning real-life currency, like it is in most sports games, you will accrue FIFA Points to buy all of your FIFA content. You'll accumulate them like the cash to pay for items in other video games. Your next goal is to be the best coach on your team. You can be the best player on the team. You can sit back, relaxing. As a true fan, you won't be happy until your nation is the best. The only way to do that? Buy FIFA Points. They will ensure that you get all of the trophies you have ever desired. 4 Towers: Everything You Ever Wanted You're the best. You beat the German team, you took down that pesky Swedish team. Each of the last World Cups has been won by the team that has held the Gold Ball. Now it's your turn. You've got the team, the manager, the fans. You've been dreaming about this for years; you can feel the journey right now, can't you? The midfielders, the attack, the defense, how many points you need? That's where the 4 Towers come in. Meet the 4 Towers. Every player on your team is unique, and they all stand at different positions on the pitch. You must know where each one is in order to optimize your
