War is Ruled by Numbers, is the Zero-K gaming wiki and fan community, launched in January 2012. The Wiki is run and managed by an all-volunteer staff and is based out of Puzzle Media Productions, Cambridge, MA. The Administration is based out of Berkeley, CA. Zero-K is a free space 4X sandbox online game set in an alternate-future where governments, corporations, and shadowy organizations design, fight, and explore in the foggy frontier known as the Human Sphere. Players mine resources, discover technologies, scout, fight, and build in a sandbox EVE 4X environment complete with economic and political systems. War is Ruled by Numbers is a non-linear game series that is all about exploration, discovery, and playing to win. The current flagship campaign began in April 2012. Since launch, the game has been released on both PC and Mac. In December of 2013, both Mac and Linux client releases have been announced with a targeted launch date in early 2014. In the past few years the game has attracted thousands of players to its social-driven online play. The game combines the depth and variety of a 4X game with the open-endedness and accessibility of a massively multiplayer online game. Players compete, cooperate, and learn together in a sandbox 4X multiplayer online game. Zero-K Star System Generator + New Vehicle Level 1 + New Armor Level 2 + New Weapon Level 3 - All items required to play the Zero-K Silver pack and Silver Donators pack will be added to the game automatically when the server is launched. Zero-K Silver Donators ($25): The top 0.1% of donations. Our definition of a donor is someone who contributes consistently and generously to the servers mission and community. Most servers have a minimum donation of $25 USD but we set the bar for our own here at $25 USD. Silver Donators include a Silver forum badge, enough kudos to unlock a clan icon and two commander skins on our website, and a 3D Silver Shield space emblem for your personal game room (in both the PC and Mac client versions). For the last several years Zero-K has been one of the top tier games on NetEase. From pre-launch and at launch we have hit a number of milestones. This is our major milestone since pre-launch. The community and our mission are stronger, the numbers of players has grown by over 500% and we expect to see that increase again in the next couple years.

No Features:Steam Web page: The Bitcoin Enigma Steam store page: The Bitcoin Enigma on the Steam Store: The Bitcoin EnigmaWe thank the reviewers for their comments and additions to our article. The first of these was a request for more detail on how we identified rules. The following paragraph is added to explain our reasoning: Based on our understanding of previous rule extraction systems, we believe that CRISPRTools can deliver an acceptable level of rule extraction quality for medium-scale systems, although we have not compared the performance of CRISPRTools to any other existing tool. Compared to other rule extraction tools, CRISPRTools shows several advantages. For instance, the rules it produces have human-readable formats that can be used by CRISPR biologists for detailed explanation and use. Also, it is easy to use and does not require programming expertise. The source code is freely available under GNU Public Licence. The CRISPRTools can be accessed from the Github web page: Next, the reviewers raised the question of whether the rules generated by CRISPRTools should only be used for forward-looking purposes or whether they can be used to test for off-target activity of a given CRISPR guide RNA in systems such as HeLa. We agree with the reviewers that there are situations where such tests can be useful. The following paragraphs are added to clarify our views: As discussed above, CRISPRTools can generate 'in silico' rules, which can be used to model the off-target activity of given CRISPR guide RNA. In addition, the 'in silico' rules can be used to help predict the outcome of an off-target experiment. When generating these 'in silico' rules, we suggest setting the rule threshold to include only those sequences that can be potentially targeted by the CRISPR guide RNA of interest. However, to generate rules that can be used to test for off-target activity, we suggest setting

Pony World 2 is a 1997 fantasy-comedy adventure video game developed by Sting, published by Eidos Interactive and released for Microsoft Windows. Despite its linear mission, the game takes place in a flat horizontal-perspective world. It follows the plotline of the original Pony World, allowing the player to continue the main characters' stories. The game received generally mixed reviews. Critics enjoyed the art style, the humor, and the ability to branch out on the second level, but criticised the repetitive gameplay and the brevity of the game. Gameplay Pony World 2 is a platform game, set in a children's-book world that becomes very cartoonish during gameplay. It is played in a two-dimensional world where the player controls the main characters, Pony and Joshua. Mounted on the player's New Creatures in the field, there is also a New Creature called the Ultimate Pony who can be ridden to travel to the next level, but it is not as stable, hence why it might grow dizzy. The player-controlled characters ride a bench in the middle of town while the Ultimate Pony runs by. During each level, the player must rescue a captive Princess who gets kidnapped by a thief named Riffles. Together with his trusty "Magician" Staff, the player rides to the thief's hideout and chases him through twelve rooms. A New Creature is of two types: a New Creature is a civilian-like character that can be ridden to travel in the game's world. The Ultimate Pony is of the New Creature type, while the other New Creatures are non-New Creatures. Among the various items in the game, the player may find notes, stickers or colored glasses. While the player rides various paths by walking or running, their Ultimate Pony is prone to walking at its fastest pace on both the ground and across gaps. When riding while running, the player cannot lean, and if the Ultimate Pony leans on a path, it will get stuck on the ground and cannot be used. Story Like Pony World, the player explores Ponyland and the surrounding countryside. Different objects and characters appear in Pony World 2, including the Green Lantern, the "Ice King" and Duff the Imp. New Creatures can be unlocked after the character completes a section of the game. Following each section in the game, the player and Misty are bardened to a disc holding the Princess' ransom note and money at Misty's house. After rescuing the captive Princess,
