It's to be a smooth departure this time. Secondly, at some point during the past few weeks, I have somehow become very aware of my surroundings. Of traffic lights. Of the sounds of hammering and nail-gunning. I don't know how this has happened, but it's occurred over the past two or three weeks. When I'm in the car, for instance, I suddenly wake up and realise I've been driving with my eyes on the road and my foot on the accelerator. No, no, no. This is not a warning, lest anyone should get the wrong idea. I'm not a self-diagnosed hypochondriac with the mental capacity of a horse. There is no need for anyone to worry. But the point I'm making is, the matter's been very relevant to my work. As a person who works from home, I've been sitting in my car, reading. Not usually difficult, but sometimes a book gets a little boring
